You've Got to Be Joking: The serious business of humor

Most employees dread Mondays. Stress and overwhelm are the new norm, and according to a recent Gallup survey, two-thirds of employees report being disengaged in the workplace. The good news is that organizations that foster humor enjoy improved engagement, creativity and collaboration – and can more easily recruit and retain top talent. It's time for employees and their companies to take humor seriously! Fusing her 25 years leading a consulting company with 10 years as an executive coach, and with a one-of-a-kind comedic voice, Pam sees humor in the workplace through a unique lens. She will show your audience how to leverage humor to amplify employee engagement, creativity and resiliency – and provide opportunities for them to laugh at themselves, see the pitfalls of using "working hard" as a metric for success, and give them permission to start "monkeying around" – balloon animals not included.

Key Takeaways

- Demystify how humor fuels employee engagement, problem solving, innovation and empathy in the workplace
- Identify 'perfect systems' that unwittingly keep you and your co-workers from showing up and performing at 100%
- Develop actionable humor tools to increase individual and team connection, creativity and resiliency

"Pam Dibbs is reinvigorating leadership and team performance with her unorthodox, highly effective, and heart-opening speaking style. A cheeky storyteller and masterful coach, Pam will beam warmth, creativity, humor, and heart into your conference or corporate event. As substantive as she is sprightly, she'll leave your audience better able to access playfulness and self-compassion, increasing their impact in all realms of their work and life."

- Alexia Vernon, Event Producer and Host,
The Spotlight MasterTreat

"Laughter is the original transformation and Pam Dibbs is a master of transformation. She had the audience crying with laughter. . . she also used humor to help everyone see how they get in their own way"

- Rich Litvin, Founder of 4PC
